

PA PEACE AMADI

Mental Health Expert, Speaker, and Vision Strategist Dr. Peace Amadi (Psy.D) is quickly emerging as a leading voice of power, purpose, and potential. With the gift of vision, palpable compassion, expert insight, and razor sharp instincts for strategy, Peace is a catalyst for transformation in the lives and work of future world changers.

Equipped with a doctorate in psychology (Psy.D) from Azusa Pacific University and BA in psychology from UCLA, she is a mental health expert, professor of psychology at Hope International University, the curator of The Pink Couch (an online community that promotes mental health, beauty & style), a former Miss Nigeria in America, the co-founder & director of The Ruby Project (a non-profit for abused women), and an emerging media personality.

Peace has presented at numerous faith-based and professional conferences across the nation, and has co-published articles in professional journals. Additionally, she has been featured in and on several other media sources including Paul Gilmartin's the Mental Illness Happy Hour, Christian Examiner, The Press-Enterprise, AfroElle Magazine, Empower Magazine and various internet and am radio programs.

In 2011, Peace co-founded The Ruby Project – a non-profit which supports and advocates for young women with stories of extreme abuse and trauma. Every year, Peace & her team hosts retreats for these women and supports their journey of healing through mental health workshops and the creative arts. In 2013, a unique experience occurred when Peace and two other Ruby Project team members competed on a national television game show – The American Bible Challenge, Season 2 – and with their bible trivia knowledge, won $25,000 for The Ruby Project.

Additionally, Peace addresses diversity issues in higher education by spearheading a campus-based advocacy group for black students and student-athletes. Due to her active work with students, she was selected as the 2013 faculty recipient of the Servant Leadership Award.

Peace believes she has been empowered to empower and lives her life committed to doing just that.

Please welcome Dr. Peace Amadi
